Accuse Simpson
In Vote Fraud

tion that Senator Simpson has not lived there for eight or nine months. At the time of said vote my challenge was ignored and the matter was dropped.

"I am still of the opinion that Senator Simpson's registration and vote WAS ILLEGAL, my opinion being supported by conference with counsel.

"Since I am satisfied that Senator Simpson did not live at said voting address it is my intention to reopen this matter by referring it to the proper authorities for investigation."

Chapman, a Republican party worker, explained his long silence in this case by declaring that he had been unwilling to lend himself to a futile gesture; that he was confident a second challenge by him would be ignored. Chapman is a former deputy internal revenue collector and in 1922 he ran for the Board of Freeholders.

The GRAPHIC has learned that it is the sworn duty of Thomas A.
McDonald, superintendent of elections in Hudson county, and a friend of Frank Hague, Jersey City's mayor and boss of the Democratic party, to investigate and prevent election fraud.

Hudson county voters are aware that McDonald failed to act in this case. It is McDonald's duty to refer such cases as are worthy of consideration to John Milton, prosecutor of the pleas in Hudson county, for presentation to the grand jury.

Fraudulent registration and voting in the election carries with it a penalty of three years in jail, as well as a fine.

At the time of the election, November 2, when Chapman challenged Simpson at the polling place, the senator promptly recited some mythical provision of the election law in defense of his vote.

He told those in charge of the polls that he might vote from any address where he received mail.
With that utterance he cast his ballot and departed.

From authorities on the election law it has been learned that there is no such provision which either directly or indirectly sets forth voting privileges of this character.

If there were such a provision on the books it would be possible for any number of persons from any part of New Jersey to vote in any district that they saw fit, despite the fact they did not live in that district.

Chapman, before making his statement, searched the records so that there would be no fear of contradiction on his part. He does not claim to know Senator Simpson's correct address, but he does know it was not the Elks Club, inasmuch as he (Chapman) has lived there for six years.

Fire House
Lures Willie

one photographer at the train. Nor did he object to carrying his rifle.
"Sure it isn't an automatic," he laughed. It was with an automatic that the rector and Mrs.
Mills were shot to death.

The next moment and the big, clean-limbed man was serious again. It was the first time that any of the defendants had confirmed their lawyers' announcement that they would sue the New York Daily Mirror for libel. The Mirror is the newspaper which reopened the murder case.

"Yes, I intend to push this libel affair against the Mirror to the limit," Carpenter said. "I hate to do it and reopen the nasty mess, but there must be some other way than the mere quashing of the indictments by which I can prove my innocence.

"I feel that it is my duty to my friends and to my firm. I don't want to make any money out of it.
Incidentally it may be a lesson that will help some other poor devil unjustly accused."

Henry Stevens, the other defendant, and his wife are in Lavallette today, the little fishing community from which trooped nearly a score of witnesses to support the sportsman's alibi. The Stevens expect to spend the winter in New York city, they said.

They did not call here on Mrs.
Hall, both they and the widow explaining that they had said goodbye in Somerville Saturday and would see each other within a few weeks.

Mrs. Hall was less bitter today than at any time since the ending of her trial. She is kept busy receiving friends eager to congratulate her and well wishers' letters continue to arrive by the hundreds daily.

In Somerville this morning the Somerset County Board of Freeholders is meeting and may listen to the protests of numerous residents of the county who do not wish to see Somerset pay the trial bills.

While much bitter condemnation of Prosecutor Simpson may be heard, it is not thought that the freeholders will refuse to pay the bills. It is known, however, that they will scrutinize them carefully and if possible shade down a number.

State Senator Clarence Case, one of the defense lawyers, is counselor to the freeholders, and they will seek his advice before any bills are paid.

Warned Anne
Against Hubbard

shall said that Hubbard had visited her many times. The shovel magnate terminated the affair when the girl informed him she "liked Norman Bel-Geddes better," and was going to take a trip to California with him.

Bel-Geddes is a young and internationally famous producer of theatrical tableaux.

It developed that the shovel business is profitable. Hubbard had been placed on the stand and asked by Miss Caldwell's counsel to enumerate his business interests.
"How much are you trying to

Chanticleer's Wings Clipped Because of Hall-Mills Jest

The New Brunswick number of the Rutgers College Chanti-cleer, a monthly humorous publication, will be altered considerably from original plans when it appears December 10, for Harold Lemon of Richmond Hill, L. I., the editor, has been forced to suppress a great deal of comment on the Hall-Mills case.

Dean Fraser Metzger called Lemon, a senior, before him and questioned him about the issue. It was planned to have a front page portrait of Willie Stevens, with grossly exaggerated features, carrying the caption "Our Willie." Also there was a cartoon of Mrs. Jane Gibson sitting down in De Russes Lane. Senator Simpson was shown opening his case—of "rare Scotch." The dean demanded that the number be censored, and Lemon complied.

prove the defendant is worth?" his attorney broke in.

"Five million dollars."

"We'll admit he's worth $2,- 000,000."

"No, we'll prove he is worth more than that."

"Well, we will make it $3,- 000,000."

This suited Earl Reed, counsel for Miss Caldwell; and should she win the case, damages will be estimated on a $3,000,000 basis.

Hubbard proved a far less interesting witness than others during the day. His testimony was about his business, the $4,000,000 Hubbard company in Pittsburgh and its $1,500,000 subsidiary in Chicago.

A Miss Caldwell in Hospital

A "Miss Anne Caldwell" was admitted to the West Penn Hospital in August, 1922, soon after the actress claims she became engaged to Hubbard, Miss Agnes Cowan, registrar of the hospital, told the court.

Dr. Don Cameron followed her to the stand.

"Do you recognize the patient?"
Attorney Reed asked him.

Dr. Cameron scrutinized the actress, whose piquant face was framed in a tiny hat.

"My contact with her was of short duration. I believe this is she," he
